PENNSYLVANIA

A pre-Christmas party ended tragically early Sunday when fire mushroomed from a tissue paper snowman and raced through a University of Pennsylvania fraternity house, killing three persons.

THE NATION

Welfare laws and antipoverty and foreign aid appropriations are the two big stumbling blocks to the adjournment of Congress this week, observers on Capitol Hill feel. If members can settle disputes over provisions of the new Social Security bill, and over cuts in the war on poverty and foreign aid programs, Congressional leaders look forward to winding up the 1967 session by Saturday. Action on other important legislation will probably be put off to the next session.

Labor trouble is ahead for the country in 1968, according to predictions by labor and management experts gathered here for the A.F.L.-C.I.O. convention. They feel that another round of collective bargaining clashes requiring deeper involvement by the Johnson administration can also be expected. Contract talks are scheduled next year in three key, war-related industries — steel, aerospace and railroads.

THE WORLD

In a formal statement issued through Tass, the official Soviet Press Agency, the Soviet Union warned the United States against extending its military action in Vietnam to neighboring Cambodia and Laos, saying it was alarmed by signs that the U.S. might move to blockade or invade Cambodia, and establish a "corridor" across Laos linking Thailand and South Vietnam. Moscow cautioned that America would "bear the complete responsibility for the consequences."

U.S. troops beat off a ferocious attack on an artillery base camp 50 miles north of Saigon. Fighting was so close that one sergeant choked a Viet Cong soldier to death inside a bunker. A U.S. military spokesman said 124 of the enemy were killed while only one American soldier lost his life.

The Cleveland Browns and Oakland Raiders clinched divisional titles with victories yesterday. An 18-yard return with an intercepted pass by Jim Houston secured Cleveland's 20-16 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals and Oakland whipped the Houston Oilers, 19-7. Page 6.

Top-ranked UCLA routed Iowa State, 121-80 Saturday night for the Bruins' 37th straight college cage victory. Lew Alcindor sparked the Bruins with 45 points. Three Top Ten teams; Louisville, Kansas and Dayton were upset over the weekend. Page 7.

GIFT FROM SANTA

Michael Jewell, 18-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Jewell, 110 Parker st., seemed more interested in the package he was opening than in the famous gentleman on whose lap he was seated. Mike was one of more than 45 children to enjoy a Christmas party sponsored by the Pre-school Mothers group Saturday. All the children who attended the party at Meadowbrook Dairy had an opportunity to talk personally with Santa Clause as well as eat their fill of sandwiches, cookies and ice cream. Santa, during his visit, also presented each child with a gift. (Photo by Knight)

Newlyweds Are Honeymooning In Caribbean

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson relaxed Sunday in Texas and Mrs. Johnson visited with wedding guests at a White House while their newlywed daughter was honeymooning on a Caribbean island. Capt. and Mrs. Charles S. Robb arrived Sunday at Caneel Bay Plantation, a luxury resort complex on St. John in the U.S. Virgin Islands.

But the word on Lynda and her Marine officer-husband of one day came from down there, not from here.

No one connected with the White House would say a word about the young couple's whereabouts or plans.

Caneel Bay had been among several possible honeymoon spots mentioned in pre-wedding speculative stories. Mrs. Johnson spent some time there a few years ago and was enthusiastic about the sunwashed island and its many white sand beaches edging amazingly clear waters.

The White House would say only that the bride's going-away outfit was an orange-red wool suit.

Farm Show To Be Held Jan. 15-19

Warren County Agricultural Extension office has received advance information about the 1968 Pennsylvania Farm Show. Dates have been set for January 15 through 19. This 52nd annual event will be held in the Farm Show Building in Harrisburg.

Theme for the 1968 Pennsylvania Farm Show is "Pennsylvania's Agriculture—Keystone Industry."

4-H Clubs, Future Farmers of America and Future Homemakers of America present group exhibits, and hold special annual meetings and other events during the Farm Show. This year Bernie Wingert and Norman Perschke will serve on the official staff of the show. Wingert is assigned to the Christmas Tree entries and maple syrup division. Perschke is assigned to the poultry division.

Flames Gut Fraternity House During Pre-Christmas Party

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A pre-Christmas party ended tragically before dawn Sunday when fire, mushrooming with a "whoosh" from a 10-foot tissue-paper snowman, gutted a University of Pennsylvania fraternity house, killing three persons. Fourteen others, including five firemen, were injured.

The searing flames—probably started, fire officials said, from a carelessly tossed cigarette—left the interior of the three-story Delta Tau Delta building a shambles of charred wood, melted holiday decorations and shreds of burnt cloth and paper from furniture, clothing and books. The house is at 36th and Locust sts., in the heart of the Penn campus in west Philadelphia.

The three victims, one a 17-year-old girl, died of smoke inhalation. All were trapped on the second floor as the fast-spreading fire turned the stairway and hall into an inferno.

Tornadoes Slash Florida; One Killed, Many Injured

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (AP) — Twisters dipped into ten cities of the Florida Panhandle Sunday, destroying dozens of homes at Tyndall Air Force Base and in the tourist town of Fort Walton Beach 60 miles away.

Officials said about 200 persons were reported injured, perhaps 30 of them seriously, and one killed.

Florida Gov. Claude Kirk flew to Fort Walton Beach in his private jet for a survey of damage and declared the site a disaster area and asked for federal assistance.

Escape Serious Injury In Route 6 Accident

Two Oil City men escaped serious injury in a spectacular one-car accident on Rt. 6 west of Warren early Saturday morning.

James A. Putnam, 22, 310 1/2 Heland ave., the driver, and Philip Anderson, about 24, are in satisfactory condition in Warren General Hospital where they are undergoing X-rays and observation.

Putnam was westbound on Rt. 6 when the car left the highway, climbed the berm and traveled 35 feet in the air. State police said the auto flew through a billboard 11 feet off the ground and traveled 45 feet further before overturning and landing on its roof.

Damage to the vehicle was set at $3,800.

The two youths—Kent Smith, 19, Wilmington, Del., and John J. Grochowski Jr., 20, Franklinville, N.J.—were found on the bathroom floor, the shower water running full force.

The dead girl, Suzie Shagendorf, 17, Chestnut Hill, Pa., was in a front second floor bedroom. Friends said she refused to follow the two youths who had leaped to safety out the window.

The fire erupted about five minutes after the formal dance had ended. Many of the 80 guests already had left, or were on their way out the front door which had been draped with sheets to give the appearance of an igloo entrance.

The two boys lived next door to each other.

15-Year-Old French Boy Confesses Kidnap-Slaying

VERSAILLES, France (AP) — A 15-year-old boy admitted Sunday he kidnaped and killed the 7-year-old son of a French government official and collected $12,000 in ransom money, police said Sunday. They reported the money had been recovered.

The police report said the boy, who could not be identified in accordance with French law on juvenile crimes, lured Emmanuel Mallart to his death as they

Soviet Warns U.S. On Extending War Outside Vietnam

(c) N.Y. Times News Service MOSCOW—The Soviet Union warned the United States Sunday against extending its military action in Vietnam to neighboring Cambodia and Laos.

In a formal statement issued through Tass, the official press agency, Moscow charged that "officials and the U.S. military command" had joined calls to blockade the Cambodian coast or invade Cambodian territory. At the same time, the statement continued, reports appeared that the U.S. plans to send troops into southern Laos to create a passageway linking Thailand and South Vietnam.

"In this way, by pursuing the piratic line to further aggravation of the war in Vietnam, the U.S. aggressive circles are by all indications preparing to spread the fire of that war to other countries of southeast Asia," the Soviet statement declared.

The statement, whose form marked it as an authoritative expression of the Soviet leadership's position, concluded with the warning:

"The Soviet Union closely follows the developments in southeast Asia. The Soviet Union proceeds from the belief that all states must respect the independence and neutrality of Cambodia and Laos and that the Geneva agreements guaranteeing the interests of these states must be observed and respected."

"U.S. attempts to cause further aggravation of the situation in Southeast Asia will be strongly rebuffed by the peace-loving states of the world, and the U.S. will naturally bear the complete responsibility for the consequences of its actions."

The statement followed a number of articles in Soviet papers expressing concern over increasing tension in the U.S.

concerning the concept of "hot pursuit" of an enemy force across the South Vietnamese border into Laos or Cambodia. Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's espousal of that concept on Nov. 28 resulted in a number of such articles.

The Soviet declaration was linked by observers to the expected departure of Secretary Robert S. McNamara from the U.S. Defense Department.

Viet Cong Lose 124 Men In Postmidnight Attack

SAIGON (AP) — Green, young and many apparently hopped up on heroin, 400 Communist soldiers charged out of postmidnight darkness into a 120-man U.S. artillery base Sunday and were cut down by a murderous crossfire that left 124 of them lying dead on barbed wire barricades and the red clay battlefield.

One American was killed and 31 were wounded in the two-hour battle 50 miles north of Saigon. U.S. officials said the suicide attack by a combined unit of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong appeared aimed at loosening allied control of Highway 13 which runs from Saigon north into Cambodia. The U.S. infantrymen took two prisoners, including a major who was identified as the commander of the enemy battalion.

Associated Press correspondent George Esper reported from the artillery base, which was set up only last Thursday, that most of the enemy troops were young men, some around 17 years old. Packets of heroin were found on the bodies of some of the dead.

The only logical conclusion is that they do take this stuff before an attack," said Capt. James D. Oenbrink, an Army doctor from Palm Beach, Fla.

1967 Session of Congress Slated to End This Week

(c) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON—The 1967 session of Congress will end this week if members can settle disputes over proposed changes in the welfare laws and over how deeply to slash President Johnson's anti-poverty and foreign aid appropriation requests.

Democratic leaders hope to adjourn the first session of the 90th Congress on Friday or Saturday, postponing until 1968 action on a wide range of legislation that the administration has termed vital.

The plan is to take a one-month vacation, until Jan. 15, before beginning the second session in which the administration must resume its efforts to salvage the President's 1967 legislative requests as well as work on additional requests he will make next year.

Only the possibility of deadlocks on the welfare changes and on the appropriation bills, it was believed, could delay adjournment.

Say Algeria Has Much U.S. Gold

(c) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — Algeria, whose links to France remain close, took from the United States last month a large amount of gold — reportedly more than $100 million — it was learned Sunday.

The Treasury, following its customary practice of not disclosing transactions with foreign countries until an official report is made several months later, declined to confirm or deny the report. But its accuracy — though not the precise amount of the Algerian conversion — was well established.

When the Treasury last Thursday disclosed a record gold loss of $475 million, officials said that part of the loss reflected central banks, which were not named. A big part of the loss stemmed from the U.S. share of gold sales on the London market by the seven-nation gold pool to meet speculation demand and hold the price firm at $35 an ounce.

Goldberg Expected To Quit

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Despite cautiously worded denials, no one at U.N. headquarters has any serious doubt that Arthur J. Goldberg is in his final weeks as head of the U.S. delegation.

He is known to have told President Johnson of his desire to quit, but he insists he has not resigned. The timing appears to be the only question to be worked out. He is expected to stay on at least until after the Security Council debate on Vietnam—if it is finally decided to push for such a debate.

This could be concluded well before Christmas, or about the time the present session of the General Assembly adjourns.

Goldberg never has concealed the fact that he took the U.N. job without any great enthusiasm.

For more than a year rumors have been cropping up to the effect that Goldberg was disenchanted and unhappy.

First Commercial A-Blast Is Successfully Detonated

FARMINGTON, N.M. (AP) — A thermonuclear device was exploded deep underground Sunday as government and industry joined forces for the first time to turn the fury of such blasts to peaceful uses.

The device, packing the wall of 26,000 tons of high explosive, was detonated in a field tomb 4,240 feet below a remote site 55 miles east of Farmington in northwestern New Mexico. The test, called Project Gasbuggy, is a first step in learning whether such explosions can aid in recovery of natural gas in certain areas and thus double the nation's reserve.

The force of the blast knocked out telephone communications at the site.

A slight tremor was felt by Lybrook, a southern union gas station about 30 miles southwest of the site.

The detonation came at 12:30 p.m. (MST) in a remote area of northwestern New Mexico.

No one at the sight apparently was injured by the shock. Seismographic needles jumped when the underground clear device was touched off. There were no immediate reports of damage at the site. A temporary telephone system which has been placed at an observation point five miles from ground zero was knocked out.

The shot was delayed 90 minutes by technical difficulties. The shot culminated a four year, $4.7 million effort by the three Gasbuggy sponsors—El Paso Natural Gas Co., the AEC, and the federal Bureau of Mines.

A report by the Atomic Ener. gy Commission 30 minutes after the blast said there was no release of radioactivity, and no report of any damage from ground shock resulting from the detonation.

As a precaution, pipelines carrying gas from wells in the five-mile radius around the site were cut apart from the El Paso Natural Gas Co. system.

Initial drilling into the broken rock zone was expected to begin Monday, to collect samples for preliminary analysis, an AEC spokesman said.

New Draft Ruling Said to Offer Effective Option

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department plan for prosecution of protesters who obstruct the draft offers a choice rather than a substitute for reclassification and priority callup, the nation's Selective Service director said Sunday.

"Either one of the channels is open to the government," said Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, the controversial, 74-year-old long-time boss of the draft.

He said nothing in the newest announcement changed his original directive Oct. 26 suggesting that registrants who interfere illegally with military recruiting or the draft could be classified for immediate callup.

But while the courts are handling a case, draft officials will not get involved, Hershey said.

He suggested in an interview that prosecutions could be directed particularly toward those too old or otherwise ineligible for the draft.

He stressed there is to be no retaliation through the Selective Service System for those who protest within the bounds of the law.

The October directive, issued five days after a protest march on the Pentagon, brought out cries that Hershey was trying to use the draft to punish dissent.

Breaks into Cabin

A burglar broke into a cabin on Hyer rd., in Spring Creek twp. Saturday, and stole a rifle valued at $60.

The gun, a 22 caliber Marlin, was owned by John Joseph Pitcavage, 23 Market st., Corry. The break-in occurred between 10:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. Corry troopers said.

Accident

Times Square Service Station. She was taken to Warren General Hospital with a possible wrist fracture. She was reported in satisfactory condition by hospital officials.

The parked car was owned by Louis A. Smith, 48 Clark st. Marks on the pavement indicated she skidded 145 feet, police said.

Allen L. Phillips, 22, 16 W. Fifth ave., was charged with reckless driving when his car swerved into a utility pole on Pennsylvania ave. near Hertz st. Phillips said he fell asleep at the wheel, police reported.

Nora D. Bowser, 18, 320 Weiler rd., was slightly injured shortly before 1 p.m. Saturday in a two-car collision at Market st. and Fifth ave. Margaret L. Gilson, 43, 10 Kenmore st., westbound on Fifth, drove into the intersection after waiting for the signal light, and was struck by the Bowser vehicle, northbound on Market, police said. Damage was set at $1,100.

There was $200 damage in a two-car mishap on Rt. 6 four miles west of Warren Saturday at 8:55 p.m.

House, Convention Face Scheduling Difficulties

HARRISBURG (AP) — The House and Pennsylvania State Constitutional Convention will collide gently Monday but neither body fears any dents.

The week-long convention returns to work at 1:30 p.m. in the House chamber while the Senate has been in recess since Nov. 30, comes back at 3 p.m.

Plans call for the "Con Con" to gavel out in time for the representatives to take over the chamber. The House plans only a token session Monday, primarily because of the scheduling conflict.

However, House Majority Republican leaders intend, once again, to push through a $104 million tax package this week in order to clear the way for final adjournment of the 1967 session.

Both House Speaker Kenneth B. Lee and House Majority Leader Lee A. Donaldson served this notice to convention officials beginning Tuesday afternoon.

"If things get going on taxes, we're going to need the floor. The convention will have to fit its schedule around that of the House if there is the threat of a conflict."

As for the lengthy tax hassle, Donaldson said, "We are going to make a hard effort to pass the tax bills when we get back." "With the holidays coming up, I would think we would have to pull out all stops to get the package this week if we expect to resolve the fiscal problem this year," added Lee.

Fire Destroys Russell Barn

Fire destroyed a barn owned by Howard Van Ord, Town Line rd., Russell Rd., Saturday afternoon.

The cause of the fire was not determined. Van Ord told firemen he had driven a tractor from the building a short time before and discovered the blaze when he was about to return the tractor to the barn.

Firemen estimated the total damage at about $5,000. In the barn, were stored 2,500 bales of hay and 1,000 fence posts. They said the building was insured.

Firemen from Russell and Lander fought the fire.

$1.9 Million Bond Issue Approved

CLYMER, N.Y. — Voters in the Clymer Central School District went to the polls Saturday and gave approval to a $1.9-million bond issue and at the same time rejected a separate proposal calling for construction of an indoor swimming pool.

The second proposed bond issue, which included the indoor pool in addition to the other construction totaled $2.3-million.

The $1.9-million bond issue will provide funds for the addition of 14 new classrooms at the Clymer school as well as extensive remodeling throughout the existing building. Seven classrooms will be added to the Findley Lake School and a new six stall bus garage will be erected.

The first proposal was approved by a vote of 377 to 176. The second proposal lost by a margin of 340 to 207.

County Extension Agents To Attend State Meeting

County Extension Agent Bernie Wingert and Associate County Agent Norman Perschke will attend the annual state staff conference of Extension workers of Pennsylvania at Penn State University, today and Tuesday.

One of the chief speakers is Dr. Eric Walker, president of Pennsylvania State University.

Another highlight of the sessions will be a presentation by Dr. Russell Larson, dean of the College of Agriculture, reviewing new developments and changes in this College of Agriculture and Human Resources. He will particularly discuss the new soils and forage testing laboratories which were opened on October 1. This entirely new facility makes complete tests, which in turn are processed on the University's IBM computer system to expedite reports and statistics.

Perschke explains that after January 1, all soil tests for land owners participating in Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service cost sharing programs of the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture must be processed through the facilities of the Pennsylvania State University testing laboratories.

$125,000 Damages

RAVENNA, Ohio (AP) — Fire early Sunday destroyed Martin Motor Dodge Agency, causing damage estimated by Fire Chief James Batsch at $125,000.

The loss included four new automobiles and other equipment. Ravenna and Kent firemen fought the fire about an hour and a half before getting it under control. No one was injured.

Chief Batsch said an investigation is under way to determine the cause of the fire.

WATCH OUT FOR THE BIG SHOCK

IN ELECTRIC HEATING

As a friend of ours, we think you're entitled to fair warning.

A couple of our other friends listened to that song and dance about electric heat costing just a few dollars more a month than Gas. "So what's a few bucks?" they shrugged. So we kept our mouths shut while they moved into an electrically heated home.

They got the knock of fiddling with all the separate room heat controls, and everything seemed fine. Until the bill for their electric heat arrived.

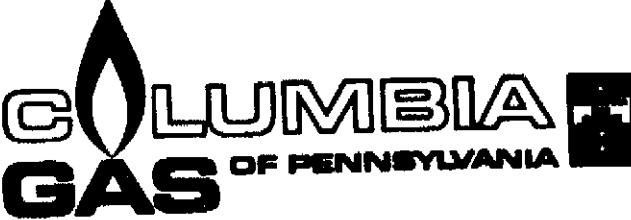

Zowie! Someone forgot to tell them that electric heat costs up to three times as much as Gas. It was like paying their own heating bill, and the next-door neighbor's bill, and his next-door neighbor's bill. Every month!

We feel sort of guilty for not warning them in advance to watch out for the big shock in electric heating, so we're telling you now: Before you leap into electric heating, look into exactly what it's going to cost you.

Think about the fact that electric heat might triple your monthly bill.

Then think of all the things you can do with the money you save with Gas.

THINK OF ALL THE THINGS YOU CAN DO WITH THE MONEY YOU SAVE. GAS MAKES THE BIG DIFFERENCE.

Controlling Water Pollution

Wesley E. Gilbertson, director of the Bureau of Environmental Health in the Pennsylvania Department of Health, recently listed six different ways people tended to measure progress in the field of controlling water pollution. And while the points were listed in a somewhat facetious manner, the approach may have added impact to the message the speaker was trying to put across.

LAWYERS SPECIAL -- In this approach the progress being made is measured by the number of cases of violations brought to court. The emphasis is on stopping existing pollution situations. No court cases, no progress.

PR OR POLITICAL -- "This has great appeal, for it is easily understood," Gilbertson said. As an example he cited a statement of the President that there should be swimming in the Potomac by such-and-such a date. The main problem, he said, is that it may not mean anything. There is swimming in the Potomac now, so it just depends on what people are willing to swim in.

ENGINEERS DILEMMA -- In this approach to the progress being made the emphasis is too often placed on the number of treatment plants built, and the public is misled into thinking these plants provide "complete treatment" when the treatment is not complete at all.

WE-HAVE-SPENT-MORE-THAN-YOU -- As the cost of pollution control bears down, there is a natural tendency to measure progress by expenditures. This tendency, he said, is particularly evident in government circles and industrial groups, and it is usually hinted, that whatever the amount, it was more than could be afforded, but that it was done anyway. SPORTSMAN'S TAPE MEASURE -- The "fishkill" method of measuring progress.

"Great progress has been made in the past ten years in building the conservation interests into water pollution control actions," Gilbertson said. "But the problems with this area as a measure of progress are two-fold:

"First, it is much easier to demonstrate negative progress than positive progress. That is -- you can show where aquatic life is dying off or absent -- but it's more difficult to show the effects of cleanup.

"Second, when a stream is cleaned up and fishlife abounds it is very susceptible to disaster when there is a 'spill' or an accidental slug of pollution goes down the stream."

SHARE-THE-BLAME -- Basically, in defining this approach, Gilbertson pointed to the large number of agencies involved in the field of controlling water pollution. With so many agencies in the field, he said, either "progress" or "blame" could be dispersed among more people.

Gilbertson summed up his talk by saying that the real problem is our lack of agreement on what constitutes pollution. That what would be pollution in one lake or stream would not be as serious in another. And that a realistic definition of what pollution of a waterway is must hinge on the intended use of the water in it.

A classification of streams that would do just this is presently being promoted at the federal level.

Fatalism of U.S. Politics

WASHINGTON -- On most things, the American people are an impatient and even sassy lot, but on presidential politics, they are patient almost to the point of meanness.

If the boss-man doesn't produce in business or baseball, the normal American reaction is to get a new manager, even if the old one wasn't to blame, but in politics the voters will tolerate anything short of total disaster.

Look at the present situation. The presidential campaign is now loitering down to a choice between Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon. Nobody regards this as a satisfactory prospect, probably not even Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Nixon, but most people accept it fatalistically, like a tornado they are helpless to avert.

It is not that the people are not grumbling about both Johnson or Nixon. Many of their comments are not fit to print in a family newspaper, but their assumption is that they can do nothing about it.

Even the people who should know better seem resigned to the calamity. For example, Gov. Tom McCall of Oregon remarked last week at the Republican governors' conference in Palm Beach that he guessed the governors would just have to begin adjusting themselves psychologically and politically to the notion of nominating Nixon. And even the newspapers on the whole have been vaguely irritated with Sen. Eugene McCarthy for challenging the President in what they regard as a hopeless contest.

This is not to say that Johnson and Nixon are not able men. They just happen to be the two politicians who inspire more distrust among more people in this country than any other two men in American political life. Even their own supporters concede the point. The claims of President Johnson and Mr. Nixon on their parties are undeniable. If the question is who has done the most for his party, the answer is inevitable: Johnson and Nixon deserve to be nominated. But if the question is who can govern this country most effectively from Jan. 20, 1969 to Jan. 19, 1973, which is a long time, the answer is not so clear.

What is clear, even at this early date, is that the problems of the four years after the 1968 election, both at home and abroad, are going to be so important and ambiguous that no President will be able to prove that he has the answers. As the problems of the world and the cities are radical, so the policies to deal with them will have to be radical. It is not difficult to imagine the re-election of President Johnson, George Wallace, Nixon and the violent anti-Johnson demonstrators, who are already forcing him to move around the country by stealth, could easily assure it. But it is difficult to imagine how he could govern effectively in the ensuing four years against the opposition and mistrust that have developed against his foreign policies and his political maneuvers in the last four years.

Nobody imagines now, even if the President wins in November, that he will have a large enough majority in the Congress to put over the controversial policies necessary to meet the problems of the next administration. If he lacks this, he will have to govern by faith and popular support among the people.

Ironically, this is also Nixon's problem, so the prospect before us is that the two men most likely to be nominated happen to lack exactly the personal characteristics most essential to gain consent for the hard and divisive policies that will face the nation between 1969 and '73.

Yet the drift of the presidential campaign moves toward these two men without any effective protest from the people or the two major political parties. It is not because there is no time and it is not because there are no other men. It is simply because the people, and even the press, feel paralyzed to influence a choice most of them do not like.

Robert Kennedy and Nelson Rockefeller are holding back, not because Kennedy really wants Johnson or Rockefeller really wants Romney, though they say they are supporting Johnson and Romney.

It is conceivable, of course, that the preferential primary elections could change the outlook, particularly in the Republican party. One or two whopping defeats for Nixon in New Hampshire, Wisconsin or Oregon and he would be out of the running. President Johnson, in contrast, could finish last in all of them and still be fairly sure of being renominated.

This phenomenon of a democratic country of 200 million people coming up with two comparatively unpopular candidates is not to be explained by party discipline. There is very little discipline in either party, compared, say, to the discipline of the conservative and socialist parties in Britain. The trouble is that nobody has seriously asked why we have to swallow it. Why Johnson and why Nixon? The answer to this is not easy to find, especially if you think about it for at least two minutes.

Insuring Your Car

Car-buyer A, in Clewiston, Fla., recently signed up for a new-car loan of $2,387.91 involving $352 in auto insurance, plus a staggering total of $735.25 in finance charges, credit life insurance and "other fees." This buyer was later advised to re-

Car-buyer B, in Glen Ridge, N.J., recently refinanced his $1,580 auto loan, on which he had contracted to pay $296 in auto insurance and $435.56 in interest and credit life insurance. Under the new contract, the same insurance coverage cost only $223.60, and interest-credit life costs were slashed to $209.74. His total savings: $298.22.

These are only two illustrations drawn from hundreds in the files of one of the country's leading auto insurance companies which underline that it is just as important to shop for auto loans and auto insurance as it is to shop for the car itself. The examples indicate that savings on interest and insurance can range up to 50 percent from one source to the next.

Admitting that you should shop for the most favorable auto financing and insurance terms, you will want to ask "how?" How can you tell the difference between the reputable auto dealer who will sell you a car with reasonable finance charges and insurance costs vs. the wheeler-dealer who will charge excessive rates? What can you do if you are already stuck with a higher financing-insurance cost than you would have to pay to other sources?

Here are the five prime guides to saving money on auto insurance and financing.

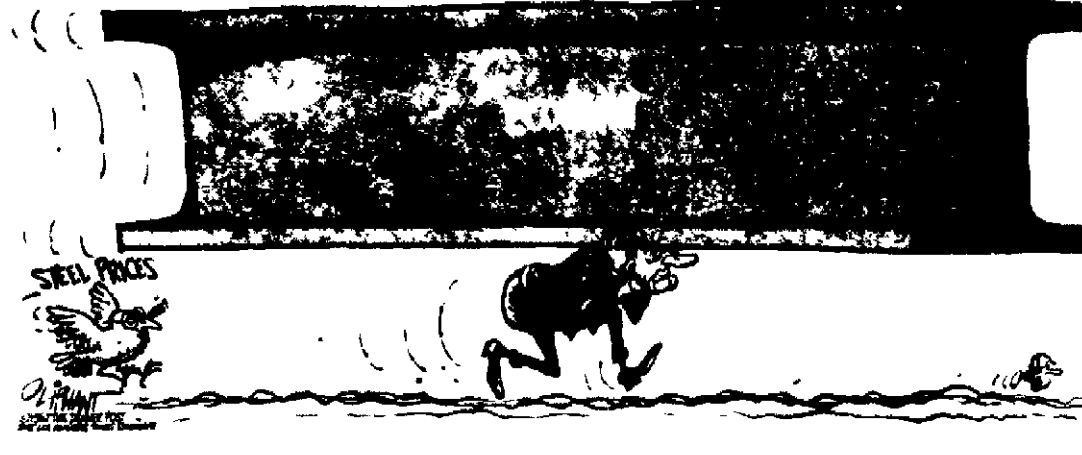

1) When you shop for an auto loan, check terms offered not just by automobile dealers, but also by local banks, other lending institutions, credit unions.

2) Compare the dollar total you would have to pay in interest and other charges to each lender as well as the interest rates charged by each. Do not fail to look behind temptingly low monthly payment schedules to find out actual rates and total costs.

3) When you shop for auto insurance, compare the costs of the coverage offered by auto dealers and reputable insurance agents and firms in your area.

4) If you have already signed up for an overpriced deal on auto financing and insurance, ask one or several trusted insurance agents or firms whether it would be advantageous to you to refinance the loan. If you refinance you will not get a refund of the full balance of your loan, because there are initial processing costs which will be deducted, but it's still possible that you can achieve significant savings. The same is true if you take out a new auto insurance policy.

5) When you shop for a car, remember that an auto dealer who "undersells everyone" by slashing his markup to an apparent starvation level is likely to try to make up for it by loading you with fat financing and insurance charges. Auto dealers are in business to make a profit, like everybody else. Beware especially of the dealer who, on the verge of making a sale to you, suddenly pressures you to get your insurance and financing from him instead of from other sources. If he attempts to force you to buy insurance and financing from him, by refusing to sell you the car otherwise, take your business elsewhere.

The Antipoverty Bill

WASHINGTON--After nine months of anguish, the antipoverty (officially OEO) bill comes up for a final vote in the House of Representatives today (Dec. 11), at which time its foes will make one last effort to kill it completely.

Its death will depend on whether all the Republicans vote no, and whether the big city Democrats, who usually take long weekends, turn up on Monday.

Meanwhile the story of what has happened to the antipoverty bill is nothing short of a political miracle. It has risen from the dead.

At one point its employees were singled out as the only agency of government denied a pay raise. At another point they were payless. For nine months the entire agency was held in suspense while Congressmen Albert Gore of Minnesota and Charles Goodell of New York, with an assist from Bill Ayres of Akron, all Republicans, tried to undermine, sidetrack or dilute the program.

An important reaction then took place. Editorials poured in from all over the country in defense of the poor. Mayors began storming into Washington demanding that antipoverty be continued. Communities became aroused as they saw more than 50 community action programs fold up for lack of funds, with Head Start children sent home because volunteers were relieved of their duties.

In several cases, poor families on Indian reservations or in Negro slums took in Vista workers who were without pay.

Meanwhile a small group of Senators, headed by Joe Clark, former mayor of Philadelphia, Bobby Kennedy of New York, both Democrats, with Jack Javits of New York, Republican, had begun the work of resurrection. They had their toughest battle in the closed-door conference with members of the House of Representatives.

For three weeks they bargained. Tempers ran high. There were 196 points of difference to be resolved between the two chambers. At one time, Rep. Carl Perkins, D-Ky., chairman of the House conferees, declared: "We of the House have come here in good faith, but it doesn't appear that the same is true of you Senators, judging by the attitude of some of you."

"I consider that a personal affront," shot back Sen. Clark icily. "I hope that you're not referring to me."

Perkins hastened to quench the flareup.

At one point Rep. Goodell, who long had battled against OEO, said he didn't think that $1.95 billion for the current fiscal year was "enough money."

"Who are you kidding, Charlie?" said the startled Rep. Roman Pucinski, D-Ill. "Your so-called 'Opportunity Crusade' bill provided only $1.4 billion. You probably figure that the more money we agree to in this conference, the greater the chance the House will roll it back. You obviously want Congress to pull the rug from under OEO altogether."

"Oh, I wouldn't say that," countered Goodell, who sat immediately to the right of Chairman Perkins. Turning to Perkins, he added:

"Mr. Chairman, we Republicans are sitting on your right, but we've actually been on the left side of every issue--the liberal view so to speak--in this conference so far. Among other things, we have stood against the Green, or 'City Hall,' amendment."

He referred to the amendment of Mrs. Edith Green, D-Ore., turning control of OEO over to local authorities.

Most of the Senate conferees, including Clark, Kennedy and Javits, also opposed the Green amendment, and Goodell's remark prompted Kennedy to observe wryly:

"I must say I am intrigued by your comment, Charlie. Apparently, we have a conservative-liberal coalition at work here."

"We of the Senate feel that if you give local governments control of the OEO it will destroy the heart of the program, which now gives the poor of a community a strong voice in planning their way out of poverty."

"I agree with you up to a point, Bobby," said Pucinski. "But the program needs to be shored up in a lot of communities. Without the leadership of responsible, elected officials, the poor can't get off the ground in some areas. If there is any corruption or indifference, these officials can be bypassed and the OEO in Washington can take control. Your own bypass amendments make this possible."

So went the closed-door debate over one of the most important problems facing the nation--poverty. The Green amendment giving OEO control to local officials will still be the big issue in the final House vote today.

WESTMORELAND TO RETURN?--President Johnson has told friends he may bring Gen. William Westmoreland back to Washington as chairman of the Joint Chiefs. The President added that Secretary of Defense McNamara had recommended Westmoreland for the chairmanship. McNamara, however, told friends he had wanted Gen. Earle Wheeler reappointed when his term expires next July.

The Master of Surprise

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON--"The President would like to see you in his office at 5 o'clock," said the voice on the telephone. C. Rasputin Jaeger, the boy colossus of American industry, knew of the President's liking for secrecy and surprise and so he told no one, not even his analyst, of the summons from the White House.

"Rasputin," said the President, when the boy colossus was seated, "I have appointed you to one of the most sensitive and important posts in the United States government."

"I am overwhelmed, Mr. President," said Jaeger. "When did you appoint me?"

"Six days ago," said the President. "I hadn't meant to tell you until after Christmas, but tomorrow's edition of the Mainichi Shimbun in Tokyo will carry a rumor that you've been appointed, and I didn't want you denying anything to the papers without knowing something solid to deny."

"Of course," he told his wife. "I should have known that he wouldn't appoint the boy colossus of American industry to anything less than the top job."

Next morning Jaeger rose early, drove to the Pentagon, and announced that he wanted Robert S. McNamara's effects removed immediately so that he could take possession of his office. Five minutes later, closely guarded by two large armed men, he was permitted to make a telephone call from a pay station.

At the far end of the line the President sounded faintly annoyed.

"Who told you, Rasputin, that I'd appointed you Secretary of Defense?" asked the President. "Who leaked?"

"Not a soul, Mr. President. Scouted from your description of the job that--" His voice failed. Then, "It is Secretary

"You are most thoughtful, Mr. President, and I am very grateful," Rasputin Jaeger thought it would be indiscreet to say more. Though he was curious to know what office he had been appointed to, he was aware that the President might not want to tell him. He knew of the President's distaste for news leaks.

"You'd better move into the office over there first thing tomorrow morning and get started right away," the President said. "We're already half-way through the budget planning for next year and you've got a lot of work to catch up on."

When he arrived home that night, Jaeger was in a quandary. He had to start work early next day in one of the most sensitive and important posts in the United States government, but he did not know which one. "You should have asked, said Mrs. Jaeger.

"You don't understand the President's liking for secrecy about these things," he explained. "If I had asked he would have been forced to tell me. That would have embarrassed him."

Soon the reporters began calling about the rumor in Tokyo. "What does it say I've been appointed to?" he asked.

"Secretary of Defense," they told him.

"Of course," he told his wife. "I should have known that he wouldn't appoint the boy colossus of American industry to anything less than the top job."

"Not a soul, Mr. President. Scouted from your description of the job that--" His voice failed. Then, "It is Secretary of Defense, isn't it?" There was an ominous silence. At last the President said, "If I told you, Rasputin, you'd go around telling everybody in the Pentagon and it would be all over the afternoon papers and my options would be cut down to zero."

"I'm dreadfully sorry, Mr. President. Believe me, sir--" "Never mind, son," said the President. "I've got some late news to tell you personally. Just get in your car and come over here right away to the White House."

The boy colossus drove to Pennsylvania avenue and identified himself at the gate. After a telephone check, the guards refused to admit him. From a drugstore phone booth, Rasputin Jaeger heard the famous voice, now obviously irritated. "If you come through the front gate like that," said the President, "those reporters are going to recognize you and start guessing that you're coming to see me, and that's going to start them guessing that I've got an announcement to make about you."

"Then you do have an announcement to make, Mr. President?"

"I do. I have withdrawn your appointment."

"When, Mr. President?"

"Eight days ago."

"How could you have withdrawn the appointment eight days ago, sir, if you made it only six days ago?"

"That's the way we work around here, Rasputin. I've got a big appointment open, I figure the press is going to try to outguess me about who's going to get it. So I pick a lot of first-class men and I withdraw their appointments for the job. Then a day or two later, I appoint 'em all. If it leaks to the press that any of them have been appointed, I've got the newspapers over a barrel because everybody's appointment has already been withdrawn two days before I made it."

"You're a master of surprise, Mr. President."

"It's all in the timing, Rasputin. Keep building that colossus image, boy, and one of these days I'll withdraw your appointment for something else."

"You're too kind, Mr. President."

"Nothing at all, Rasputin. Watch out for those leaks."

MASON DENISON

The Fiscal Blueprint

Pennsylvania News Service
HARRISBURG -- As lawmakers return to Capitol Hill today the big question of the moment is whether there is destined to be a repeat this week of the tax fiasco vote which at the last moment preceded the legislative recess of the past week.

Time now has virtually run out for Pennsylvania's legislative bridge to come up with some sort of fiscal blueprint for the Keystone State over which haggling has brewed since the start of the fiscal year July 1.

At best the Legislature has this week and next week to wind up the chore before the end of the year what Christmas falling due week after next. Even the remaining two weeks can hardly be classed as full weeks inasmuch as way must be made for a time and space split with the constitutional convention now under way here.

The little known background on what happened during that tax fiasco vote of the fortnight ago is significant and points up the dilemma facing the year-old Shafer Administration when the question comes up again, as it must, of what is to be done about providing the now critically needed funds--as for example the $104 million the state-related universities must have.

The tax fiasco vote developed when administration Republican legislative leaders called for a vote on a simple tax bill that would have reduced the sales tax exclusion on restaurant meals from 50 to 10 cents.

Actually, the bill would have added only $8 million to state coffers and would have affected only those buying a beany meal costing between 10 and 50 cents. Thus the maximum amount it would cost for any one meal (if a repeat costing less than 50 cents can be so labeled) is three cents. The money was earmarked for college subsidies.

Significantly and not generally known: Democrats had lined up 15 of their House members to vote for the bill in an effort to give the Governor the money he felt was needed. This meant that (controlling) Republicans could afford 15 defections (a huge number when the Governor's prestige is involved).

The Republican leadership of the House of Representatives called a caucus in an effort to line up the votes. For two hours, they worked at the job.

Why didn't they call in the Governor for a personal appeal?

"If we had," one Republican leader answered, "those guys are so mad, we would have lost some of the votes we had lined up."

When they emerged, GOP leaders knew that they were licked. As many as 38 voters (more than one-third of their total strength) would not vote for some of the eight taxes in the overall package--for which Mr. Shafer was being given Democratic support!

They decided to run a "test" vote anyway--picking one of the taxes that seemed the least important.

After all of the cajolery, arm-twisting, all the pressure-packed tactics that could be employed, the Republicans lost 23 votes on this minor tax item!

Unquestionably it represented a humiliating defeat for the Shafer Administration, with such a huge bloc of its own people refusing to go along--even after Democrats (who as the minority do not hold the responsibility club this session) agreed to provide votes the administration itself could not deliver!

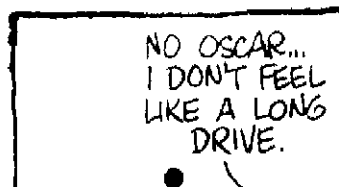

In fact, things had reached such a pass that the Governor had called upon Representative Herbert Fineman, the Democratic House leader, to ask his aid. (In case you don't remember, Mr. Fineman's the chap His Excellency had been calling a "juvenile," "obstructionist" and what-not.)

Inescapable is the fact that Mr. Fineman has been able to do something Mr. Shafer and his legislative leaders have not held his people together!

The question now is whether the tax fiasco is destined to repeat itself.

Red Intellectuals Ask Open Trial

By ANTHONY C. COLLINGS
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Forty-four Moscow intellectuals have petitioned for an open trial in the case of four young Russians scheduled to face a Moscow court Monday charged with spreading anti-Soviet propaganda, informed sources said Sunday.

Despite the plea, the trial is expected to be closed to the public and to foreign reporters.

At least three of the defendants are expected to plead innocent to charges that fiction and nonfiction works linked with them were designed to weaken or overthrow Soviet Communist authority, the informants said.

The defendants face a maximum possible sentence of seven years in hard labor camps.

The case is separate from a trial which other sources said already has begun in Leningrad of four accused leaders of a secret anti-Soviet terrorist network. Charges against them carry a possible death sentence.

WEEK IN FINANCE

Market is Nervous Over U.S. Gold Loss

By THOMAS E. MULLANEY
(C) N.Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK—Financial markets maintained their composure last week in the face of a number of unsettling developments.

There was nervousness over the United States gold loss during the recent speculative attack on the dollar and by the further evidence of inflationary pressures on the economy.

It was encouraging, therefore, that the securities markets continued calm during the historic events of the last three weeks. The financial world has survived Britain's sterling devaluation and the accompanying upsurge in interest rates with relatively few convulsions.

"The world, after all, didn't come to an end," remarked one government bond trader. Nevertheless, the weeds of trouble are still to be winnowed.

The flight of American gold was the week's highlight to support operations of the London gold pool and cover the dollar conversions of some foreign central banks, the U.S. gave up $475 million of its gold last week, the largest weekly drain ever.

This outflow reduced the free supply of U.S. gold to less than $2 billion and hastens the time when the U.S. must seek to end the statutory requirement that 25 per cent of its paper currency be backed by the yellow metal.

The U.S. gold stock is now $12.4 billion, but $10.45-billion of it is required backing for domestic currency. Claims of foreign central banks and official institutions against the gold supply exceed $14 billion.

President Johnson hailed the defense of the dollar by the gold pool and said that this international cooperation "decisively repelled" a speculative attack "at a relatively small cost in reserves."

But, banker George S. Moore warned the other day, the U.S. is over-extended financially and the dollar is "at bay."

Meanwhile, domestic interest rates, wages and prices continued to go up and up and up, and there seems to be no end in sight.

Despite the many problems, the stock market held steady and market averages advanced for the fifth consecutive week; also a better tone prevailed in the bond market.

The major development on the price front was the 3.3 percent increase on steel products — sheets and strip — used in the auto, appliance and other consumer industries.

These were criticized in Washington, but there was no effort to force a rollback as on previous occasions.

Other significant price rises last week were in glass, chemicals, paper, flooring and carpets. And 91 per cent of the U.S. purchasing agents, in a new

St. John's Day Banquet Set For Dec. 27th

On Wednesday, December 27th, local Masons will hold their annual St. John's Day banquet at the Beaty Junior High School cafeteria.

This annual event celebrates the festival of St. John, the Evangelist, the patron saint of Freemasonry, and is sponsored by North Star Lodge No. 241 and Joseph Warren Lodge No. 726, Free and Accepted Masons.

The speaker for the evening will be Harry Butler Savage, who is well known in Masonry, and has recently retired from the National Training School for Boys, a division of the U.S. Bureau of Prisons.

Cook Forest Termed Eligible Landmark

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four Pennsylvania sites have been selected as eligible for designation as natural landmarks.

Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall announced Saturday they were recommended by the Advisory Board of National Parks, Historic Sites, Buildings and Monuments.

They are: Cook Forest in Clarion County, Hickory Run Boulder Field in Carbon County; Presque Isle Peninsula near the city of Erie, and Snyder. Middleswarth Natural Area five miles west of Trozelleville, Snyder County.

survey, predicted further price rises in 1968.

The week also produced new calls from labor leaders for higher wages to offset the continuing rise in living costs. This augurs difficulties in major bargaining next year in the steel, aluminum, aerospace and other industries.

At the same time, the rise of interest rates in the bond market resumed after a brief period of stability.

The Pacific Northwest Bell Telephone Company last week sold $50 million of triple-A debentures, which may not be refunded for five years, priced to give investors a return of 6.65 per cent — the highest on record for such securities.

Two other utilities—the Pacific Gas and Electric Company and the Virginia Electric and Power Company — offered double-A bonds, nonrefundable for five years, that yielded 6.8 per cent, also a record high. In the market for tax-exempt bonds, rates went up enough to push the bond buyer's index of municipal bond yields to 4.45 per cent, their highest since April, 1954. The gap between stock yields and bond yields is now its biggest in history.

CLAUS-TROPHOBIA

What is Claus-trophobia? It's the special weary feeling that affects dedicated gift-buyers (Santa Clauses) . . . right in the middle of their Christmas shopping. Symptoms: very, very tired feet—the result of overburdening. Suggested remedy: do some of your shopping by phone. Take a load off those feet.

AND SPEAKING OF SANTA...here's a Santa-type suggestion: an extension phone, in color, to please some nice person in your family. A step-saver, a time-saver...a sure-fire hit-maker. Try it, Kris Kringle. Just call our Business Office or ask any telephone man.

LITTLE MISTAKES . . . A little mistake can connect you with Los Angeles instead of New York. The area code to New York is 212, while the area code to L.A. is 213. If you make a mistake like this, or for any reason get a wrong number while calling Long Distance, please call your operator right away. She'll see that the charge doesn't appear on your bill. Incidentally, before you make an out-of-town call, it's a good idea to check the Pink Pages of your telephone book. You'll find helpful information on how to reach any place you wish to call.

Took A While, But Bradley's In NBA

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Bradley's long awaited National Basketball Association debut was delayed first by a Rhodes Scholarship to Oxford and then by a government invitation to the Air Force.

Coach Dick McGuire of the New York Knicks added 12 minutes to the delay, and it was too much for the fans.

Bradley, the Knicks' No. 1 draft choice in 1965 who signed a $500,000 contract last spring, sat out the entire first quarter of New York's Saturday night game against Detroit, and the standing room only crowd of 18,493 wasn't happy.

The fans started clapping and chanting for Bradley when the game was just two minutes old. Then, about midway through the quarter, they saw McGuire signal for someone to get off the bench and go into the game.

They hoped Koster, but when they saw how he played, they started unclipping his warm-up jacket, they let loose a thunderous stream of boos.

"I wanted to put Bradley in when we had a lead so the pressure wouldn't be as great," McGuire said after the 124-121 loss.

The coach finally sent the former two-time All-America in to start the second quarter when the Knicks led 35-23.

The crowd gave Bradley a prolonged standing ovation when he walked onto the floor, and they cheered wildly when he promptly hit on his first shot — an eight-foot jump from the side.

He played a total of 20 minutes and scored eight points, connecting on three of six from the floor and three of six free throws.

"I thought he was a little nervous," McGuire said. "I guess sitting on the bench at the start and watching had something to do with it. I might just start him Tuesday night against St. Louis. There won't be as much pressure as there was in his first game."

Bradley, however, disagreed with McGuire.

"I don't think I was nervous," said the 6-foot-5 rookie who recently completed a six-month stretch in the Air Force after two years at Oxford in England. "The crowd doesn't really bother me at all. It's just noise, that's all. I felt that I played my game and was disappointed that we lost."

Bradley was asked if he thought an adjustment had to be made since he hadn't played any competitive basketball in over a year and had only one workout with the team.

"Definitely," he replied. "But I can't say how long it will take. I do feel very fortunate to be playing with the guys I did. They helped me out and made sure I knew all the plays."

Eddie Donovan, general manager of the Knicks doesn't doubt that Bradley will make the adjustment.

"He's a heck of a player," Donovan said. "I was delighted with his performance. I thought he was a little tight in the first half, but he loosened up in the second half. The last 9-10 minutes he played he was really starting to penetrate and get in close to set up the plays."

"But, you have to remember he only worked out once with us and the lack of practice and not playing together showed. He hit guys with passes but they weren't expecting them."

EOC Cage Team in First Loss

SHARON — The Warren-Eldinboro Campus basketball team suffered its first defeat of the season here Saturday night at the hands of the Shenango Cougars, 70-64.

Warren held a slim 41-38 advantage at the halftime, but were outscored by Shenango 32 points to 23 in the last 20 minutes.

The host team held a one-point margin from the field, 27 to 26 for Warren, and converted 12 of 27 free throws to only 12 of 29 for the visitors.

Three Warren cagers hit for double figures. Paul Johnston was high with 21 points, 20 of which came from the field. Eric Jones hit 20 and Dave Bucka, who fouled out with 12:20 remaining in the game, had 17.

76ers' Costello May Be Through

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia 76ers veteran Larry Costello—oldest player in the National Basketball Association, both in age and service—ruptured his left Achilles tendon Saturday night in the 76ers' 123-109 win over Baltimore.

A team spokesman said Costello, 38, will be operated on Monday or Tuesday and speculated his 12-year NBA career may have ended as a result of the injury.

It came in the closing seconds of the game at Baltimore when he collapsed in pain. Costello, of Mineola, N.Y., broke into the league with the old Philadelphia Warriors.

DOES IT AGAIN

Cleveland Browns linebacker Jim Houston, who won a game earlier this season by returning an intercepted pass for a touchdown, did it again yesterday. The former Ohio State All America picked off a St. Louis Cardinal aerial and went 18 yards for what proved to be the game-winning points to clinch the Century Division title for the Browns, 20-16.

PRO FOOTBALL ROUNDUP:

The Oakland Raiders clinched the Western Division title in the American Football League by beating Cleveland 19-7 Sunday, while Cleveland won the National League's Century Division title with a 20-16 victory over St. Louis.

Oakland's victory combined with San Diego's 41-24 loss to Miami to give it the championship.

The Raiders, 11-1-0, trailed 7-0 at halftime, but roared back with four field goals by George Blanda and Hewitt Dixon's 27-yard touchdown run to beat Houston which remained in tie with the New York Jets for the Eastern Division lead at 7-4-1.

The Jets lost 21-7 to the Kansas City Chiefs as Len Dawson threw for two TDs and Fred Williamson ran 77 yards with an intercepted pass for another.

Bob Griese was too much for San Diego, 8-3-1. The rookie quarterback passed for two Miami touchdowns and ran for another.

Cleveland went ahead 20-0 when linebacker Jim Houston intercepted a pass and rambled 18 yards for a touchdown in the fourth quarter. But St. Louis, 6-6-1, fought back to score and had the ball on the Cleveland 13 when the game ended.

The Baltimore Colts, 11-0-2, rolled to a 30-10 victory over New Orleans to set the stage for next Sunday's big game against the Los Angeles Rams, 10-1-2.

A victory or tie would give the Colts the Coastal Division championship and the right to meet Green Bay for the NFL's Western Conference title. Los Angeles, which beat Green Bay, the Central Division winner, Saturday, needs a victory.

Baltimore scored three TDs on runs and Lou Michaels boot three field goals against New Orleans.

Dallas, 9-4-1, will meet Cleveland for the Eastern Division title, while Pittsburgh, 10-1-1, will meet Green Bay for the NFL's Western Conference title. Los Angeles, which beat Green Bay, the Central Division winner, Saturday, needs a victory.

Chicago's Pete Sayers ran seven yards for a touchdowns

The speedy Mead scored an impressive victory over Erie and Goss at 133, taking a 4-1 lead after one period. He built it to 6-3 midway through the second period, drove Goss over onto his back with the arm-bar and referee Corky Latimer signaled the pin with 50 seconds showing on the clock.

With the Dragons in command 16-8, Kaiser kept things rolling with a convincing 9-2 triumph over Charles Kast in the 138-pound bout. Kaiser surged to a 4-0 lead on a first period takedown and second period predicament, then Kast narrowed the margin to 4-2 with a reversal near the end of the middle stanza. The final two minutes belonged to Kaiser as he scored on an escape, another take-down and had complied over three minutes of riding time in the bout.

A 6-3 decision by Malmes upped Warren's lead to 22-8. He and Luis Ebratt of the Ramblers wrestled nearly five minutes to a 3-3 deadlock, then with 24 seconds remaining in the match, Malmes took Ebratt to the mat with a barrel-roll and 1:58 in riding time gave him another point.

Warren's Lowe got behind against Cliff Dobbs at 154 when the Rambler grappler surprised him with a reversal and predicament points with 20 seconds remaining in the second period. Lowe reversed Dobbs in the last stanza, but an escape with 55 seconds remaining clinched it for the Erie matman, despite a riding time advantage by Lowe, at 5-3.

With Warren ahead by a 22-11 score, Prep still had a chance, but Thompson tied it with a 9-4 triumph over Dave Stephany at 165. Each recorded a reversal in the last two minutes and Thompson had a 2:23 riding time advantage for two more points.

FORGET SOMETHING?

Both Jan Gies (33) of Florida State University and Florida's Mike Rollyson (25) seem to be ignoring the ball as they head into the action during the second period of a game played last week. Actually, a pass had slipped past Gies and Rollyson was fooled by the play too.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL ROUNDUP:

Miami Trips Gators; Bowl Season Off And Fumbling
The regular college football season had its final flings last Saturday and many of them were intercepted, while the bowl season got off to a fumbling start.

Miami, preparing for its appearance in the Bluebonnet Bowl against Colorado in Houston in two weeks, wrapped up the championship of Florida by outstealing Florida 20-13 on national television.

Numerous bowls decided other minor championships throughout the country before the Liberty Bowl in Memphis, Tenn., ushers in the major postseason play Saturday matching Georgia and North Carolina State.

San Diego State, the nation's top-ranked small college team, led the way with a 27-6 victory over San Francisco State in the Camelia Bowl in Sacramento, Calif., with the help of three pass thefts.

Fairmont, W. Va., State, aided by two miscues, won the NAIA small college championship by halting Eastern Washington 28-21 in Morgantown, W. Va.

Eastern Kentucky used a fumble to help score a 27-13 victory over Ball State in the Grandland Rice Bowl in Murfreesboro, Tenn.

Elsewhere, Sanford beat Arkansas A&M 20-7 in the Space City Classic in Huntsville, Ala.; Arizona Western tripped Henderson County, Athens, Tex., 20-7 in the National Junior College Bowl in Las Vegas, Nev. and New Mexico Military defeated Cisco, Tex., 20-13 in the junior college Wool Bowl in Boswell, N.M.

Miami recovered two fumbles and intercepted five Larry Rentz passes, linebacker Ken Corbin returning two of them 80 and 45 yards for touchdowns, as the Hurricanes offset four fumbles and two pass thefts for their own. The other Miami score was set up by a 79-yard punt return by Jimmy Dye.

The Hurricanes finished at 7-3.

San Diego, despite a secondary thinned when six starters were ruled ineligible because of NCAA rules governing junior college transfers, set up two touchdowns with interceptions and stopped a threat with a third.

Fairmont, trailing 14-7, turned a fumble recovery on the second half kickoff into a tying touchdown and then took over on the Washington one on a bad pass from center to set up another score.

Jim Guice threw for two touchdowns and ran for a third for Eastern Kentucky, but the decisive score came when Teddy Taylor picked off a fumble in midair and ran 35 yards for a touchdown.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL ROUNDUP:

Bruins Roll On; Losses Stop Other Top Toppers

Who's going to beat them? College basketball fans asked that question last March when UCLA ended the first year of the Lew Alcindor era by crushing Dayton for the national championship in the NCAA tournament final.

They are asking it again following UCLA's rout of Iowa State in Los Angeles Saturday night 121-80 for its 37th straight victory behind Alcindor's 45-point performance.

Louisville, ranked third nationally to UCLA in The Associated Press poll, was given a chance in pre-season calculations, but the Cardinals were upset Saturday by unheralded Northwestern 88-83 despite 36 points by Westley Unseld.

Louisville does not have a regular season game with UCLA but was looking ahead to a possible meeting with the champs in the NCAA tourney this season.

UCLA is idle this week, but the Alcindor-led Bruins doubtless will be big favorites to whip Bradley, Notre Dame and Minnesota in their next three games, Dec. 22-23-27, respectively.

That would seem to leave it up to the second-ranked Houston Cougars and Elvin Hayes, the Big E, to stop the all-conquering march of the Bruins. Houston is slated to meet UCLA in the Astrodome on Jan. 20, a game that may draw a record basketball turnout of 40,000.

Before UCLA equalled the third longest winning streak in the college sport, previously achieved in order by Texas, North Carolina and Cincinnati, Houston had made it four in a row by beating Illinois at Champaign 54-46 behind Hayes' 25 points.

Louisville was not the only high ranking team to be upset Saturday night. Fourth-ranked Kansas bowed to Chicago Loyola 83-73 in the second half of the Chicago Stadium doubleheader following Northwestern's surprise victory over Louisville on the play of three sophomores, Jim Sarno and Don Adams.

Fifth-ranked North Carolina tumbled before eighth-ranked Vanderbilt at Nashville 89-76. Sixth-ranked Dayton did not play but was upset by Eastern Kentucky 76-75 Friday night.

Purdue, Kentucky and Boston College, the other teams in the AP Top Ten, won. Purdue, No. 7, rebounded from a Friday defeat to Washington to turn the tables on the Huskies at Seattle 84-77 behind 30 points by sophomore Rick Mount.

Kentucky, No. 9, made it four in a row by whipping Penn at home 64-49 and upping Coach Adolph Rupp's career victories to 764. Boston College, No. 10, won on the road against Connecticut 76-70.

Davidson, Duke, Louisiana State, Wyoming, Utah, New Mexico and Brigham Young kept their records clean. Davidson romped over Michigan 91-70, Duke downed Alabama 86-80, LSU took New Orleans Loyola 98-56, Wyoming overcame Idaho State 115-96, Utah beat Utah State 102-90, New Mexico edged Texas Tech 60-58 and BYU defeated Texas 63-50.

In other major games St. John's N.Y., downed Southern California 63-58, St. Bonaventure nipped Toledo 94-93 in overtime, Navy edged Harvard 79-78, Yale beat Holy Cross 78-55, Florida downed West Virginia 82-72, Tulsa squeaked past Kansas State 62-58 and Nebraska took Washington State 91-76. Duguesne walloped Pitt 100-66 in the final of the Steel Bowl.

The 40-year-old Wolman is to receive $14.5 million from a group headed by Norman S. Raab, a clothing manufacturer. The money is to be divided, $2.6 million for 30 per cent of the stock, and $12 million as a loan, secured by the balance of the club's stock.

Wolman remains as club president and the majority stock will remain in his name. Control of the franchise, however, until the loan is repaid, passes to the Raab interests. Ostensibly, Wolman is keeping his word — "I will never sell the Eagles as long as I live." The one-time bankrupt grocer from Shenandoah, Pa., however, is taking the first step of what could be his forced exit from professional football.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jerry Wolman isn't technically selling the Philadelphia Eagles but he is expected to sign this week a deal which places the National Football League club in hock to absentee ownership and makes him a mere figurehead.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — In talking about Monday night's Gypsy Joe Harris — Miguel Barreto fight the question is not will the unbeaten Gypsy win, but will he show up?

Harris hasn't been known to miss a fight, although his record for appearances at training sessions, physical examinations, and weight-ins leaves a lot to be desired. His latest disappearing act was Thursday when he failed to show for the physical.

His co-manager Yancey Durham, himself more than an hour late, said he didn't know where Harris was, and as a result paid a $50 fine and was told it would be $500 next time.

Someone managed to find the short, bald headed Harris, although it wasn't reported if the fighter was wearing one of his green suits, mink bow tie and mink cufflinks. He was examined by a state athletic commission physician and pronounced ready to try for his 23rd consecutive victory.

In addition to his ring eccentricities, which include strange dances, a flurry of punches from a seemingly off balance position, taunting his opponent by ballet movements around the ring with his hands at his side, and just plain disdain for the opponent, Harris has a weight problem.

Many doubt he can get down to 147 pounds and retain a fighting posture. He'll be 154, give or take a pound for Barreto, a Puerto Rican welter he beat last summer in a tough fight.

Durham says that if Harris beats Barreto again, and "some personal matters are settled in Dallas a judgment for failing to make the weight for a fight with welterweight champion Curtis Cokes, Gypsy will get a shot at the 147-pound crown late next month in Dallas. Harris is ranked No. 1 by the World Boxing Association and No. 2 by Ring Magazine.

Barreto won't be any soft touch for Harris, even at the 146

Outlook for Labor Peace In 1968 Appears Dim

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
BAL HARBOUR, Fla. — The nation appears to be headed for another round of rough collective bargaining clashes in 1968.

That is the consensus of leading labor-management experts attending the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organization convention here.

These authorities also agreed that the nature of the forthcoming contract talks, plus the fact that 1968 will be an election year, makes it likely that the Johnson administration will find itself far more deeply involved in settling disputes than in 1967.

The three rounds of contract talks next year—in steel, aerospace and the railroads—are inextricably bound up with the Vietnam war. The government could therefore not tolerate a long shutdown in any of these industries, the theory goes, so federal efforts to head off

Shipbuilding On Smoother Seas

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WALLSEND, England—Britain's once-mighty shipbuilding industry is finding smoother sailing after years of choppy seas.

Devaluation has given the yards a windfall price advantage. But even earlier, there had been cause for cheer in the record $142 million in deliveries this year, the supertanker boom and the prospect of efficiencies from the consolidation of five yards on the River Clyde at Glasgow and another five on the Tyne at Newcastle.

Sir John Hunter, 55-year-old chairman of the Swan Hunter Group, the international shipbuilding and repair organization, is optimistic particularly about the forthcoming Tyneside merger under his direction. The result will be a mammoth operation.

"If we can produce ships at a price that is attractive, if we can get on a parity with the Japanese," Sir John said in an interview, "then I foresee a prosperous and expanding industry."

The British government has been helping to revive shipbuilding fortunes with loans for builders and easy credit for the buyers. It has also encouraged consolidations of smaller yards into units of greater efficiency.

Industry critics argue, however, that despite the veneer of high volume, British shipbuilding is still sick. They also say Britain owes whatever improvement it claims to the filled order books of Japanese competitors. At the end of the third quarter, Britain's orders stood at about 2.5 million tons against Japan's 17 million.

any strikes seem likely. Another factor that could affect the picture is the threat of antistrike legislation. Many labor leaders are fearful that a rash of major strike crises this year could prompt Congress to pass a general law to prevent such troubles.

In any event, the authorities agree that 1968 contains all of the elements for another year of labor strife and acute bargaining conflicts.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics estimated that 2,750,000 workers will be covered by major contract expirations during 1968, with another 1.2 million under contract with reopeners. About 3.1 million workers were covered by major expirations, and another 1 million by reopeners, this year.

The biggest bunch of contract expirations will come between May and September in such industries as aluminum, steel, aerospace, the railroads, and East and Gulf Coast longshore. These negotiations could cause difficult political problems for President Johnson prior to the November elections.

Syria, France To Agree On Oil Deal

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
BEIRUT, Lebanon — A Syrian delegation that arrived in Paris Sunday is expected to conclude among other things an agreement with the French for the sale of Syrian crude oil on world markets.

Informed sources here said that Syria is turning to France because western oil companies had refused to buy Syrian oil.

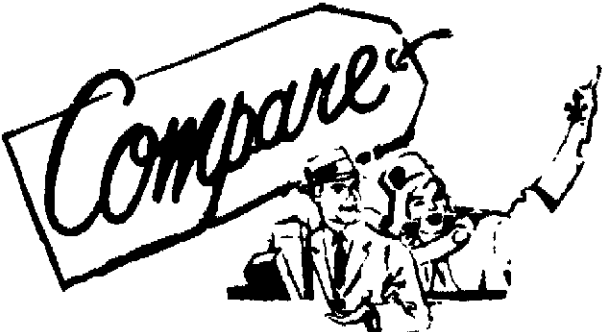

Syria is due to start exporting crude oil from fields in the northeast of the country next year. A pipeline to carry the oil from the fields, which were developed with Soviet assistance, to the Syrian Mediterranean terminal of Tarous will be completed next month. The pipeline is being built by Snam Progetti, a subsidiary of an Italian state oil concern, ENI.

Syrian oil exports are expected to begin at 100,000 barrels per day, to be increased later.

Beirut's pro-Cairo newspaper Al-Nasr, in a private dispatch from Paris quoted informed sources as saying that the delegation will seek French arms for Syria.

The newspaper also claimed that France is to supply Iraq with 75 tanks under a deal concluded with an Iraqi military group now visiting France. Al-Nasr added that a deal for supplying French Mirages to Iraq was also under consideration.

NEW FORESTER

Charles Thompson arrived yesterday to assume his duties as a forester on the staff of Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters District 14. (Photo by Hoff)

Thompson Joins Local Forest Service Staff

Charles Thompson, Wellsboro, arrived Friday to join the staff of District 14 headquarters Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters. A forester, he was graduated from Pennsylvania State University College of Forestry in June of this year. He is a member of the Pennsylvania Forestry Association. Thompson was born in Clarion, but his family soon moved to Wellsboro, where he attended public schools. An outdoorsman, he is fond of hunting and fishing. He is unmarried. His most pressing problem is to find a furnished apartment. Thompson's chief assignments will be in advisory work for private landowners in Warren and Forest counties, on woodland management, tree planting, and other private forest problems. He will also share responsibility on fire control, and act as a consultant on insect and disease problems in the forest. He has had practical forestry experience, and worked one summer vacation on the Shasta-Trinity National Forest in California. In joining the local staff, Thompson will work in the third largest forest area of any of the 20 districts in the commonwealth, District 14, which includes Warren, Forest, Erie, Venango and part of Crawford County, now has 1,413,500 acres of lands in forests. There are 17 million acres of forest land in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

The forested areas in District 14, as in all of Pennsylvania, are expanding. During the past year in District 14 alone 700,000 tree seedlings were planted. They were supplied by the Pennsylvania Dept. of Forests and Waters.

The extent of forest lands in District 14 makes its exceptional forest-fire record all the more remarkable. It enjoys one of the lowest forest-fire records in the Commonwealth. This, according to District Forester Bob Ache, is due to constant fire prevention program, and to prompt action by local fire departments and volunteer forest fire wardens when such fires break out or are a threat.

4 Killed in Midnight Crash

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — A car carrying four teen-age boys home from a Saturday night dance bounced off a concrete bridge abutment and slammed headon into a small convertible, killing four persons and injuring two others. The crash occurred shortly before midnight on Pennsylvania 97 six miles south of Erie, killing two boys in the car and a man and young woman in the convertible.

State troopers said the boys' car glanced off the abutment on a curve and veered into the other auto coming in the opposite direction.

The boys' car landed on top of the smaller auto, pinning the bodies of the driver, Clifford M. Gilson, 27, of Erie and his passenger, Mary A. Dingle, 22, of Waterford in the wreckage.

Fatally injured in the other car were Brian M. Mosier, 17, of Rt. 5, Erie, and Charles Gelger, 17, of Route 3, Erie. The Gelger boy died at St. Vincent Hospital in Erie almost seven hours after the crash.

He and the Mosier boy were riding in a car driven by Roger Ellis, 18, of Rt. 4, Waterford.

The Ellis boy and another of his passengers, Anthony Heynoski, 14, of Rt. 3, Erie were admitted to St. Vincent with lacerations.

Sylvania Gets New Phone System

A new telephone communications system that incorporates many of the newest and most efficient services and equipment of the Bell Telephone System was installed recently at the Sylvania Electric Products Inc., Warren location.

Centered on an ultra-modern switchboard, the system serves all three local Sylvania plants and the company's general office building, offering greater speed and flexibility.

Some 400 telephones are linked to the new switchboard which is manned by two operators in normal working hours and has an "electronic secretary" that will record messages while the board is unmanned.

Other features of the system, designed for Sylvania by Bill Carney, a Bell of Pennsylvania communications consultant, are:

Automatic ringing — the switchboard operator no longer has to manually ring each incoming call but just plugs into the station jack and the line automatically rings at timed intervals.

A greater number of telephones — about 400 — are linked to the one switchboard.

An in-plant emergency system — when any emergency occurs Sylvania personnel need only dial 222 to receive prompt attention.

One equipment room — eliminating the need for a second room occupying space Sylvania can put to other uses.

WATS service — for a flat monthly fee Sylvania personnel are able to place calls to about two-thirds of the United States. (WATS stands for Wide Area Telephone Service.)

Three digit dialing — Sylvania personnel in Warren can reach each other by simply dialing three digits.

Museum Given Painting

HARRISBURG — The original of one of the late N.C. Wyeth's most famous book cover paintings — for James Fenimore Cooper's novel "The Deerslayer" — has been presented to the William Penn Memorial Museum here and now hangs just inside the main entrance to the Museum's Memorial Hall.

Formal presentation of the work by the donors, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Bailey, of Harrisburg, climaxed last week's meeting of The Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission.

The painting was accepted from Mrs. George R. Bailey by James B. Stevenson, chairman of the PHMC, of Titusville, in the presence of members of the commission and its executive director, Dr. S.K. Stevens, at a brief ceremony in Memorial Hall of the new State Museum.

POLICE CADETS

Garry L. Hunter (left) of 117 Sixth ave., Warren, and William J. Haskins (right) of 1400 Pennsylvania ave., e., Warren, receive instruction on the proper use of the 38 caliber revolver on the pistol range at the State Police Academy, Hershey. Instructing them is trooper Joseph F. Petritis. The two Warren men are members of the Pennsylvania State Police Cadet Class that enrolled Sept. 28, 1967. The class will graduate Dec. 20, 1967.

2 Warren Men Attending State Police Academy

Two local men will be graduating from the Pennsylvania State Police Cadet Class at the Pennsylvania State Police Academy, Hershey, this month.

Garry L. Hunter, 24, of 117 Sixth ave., and William J. Haskins, 23, of 1400 Pennsylvania ave., e., will graduate from the 12-week training program on Dec. 20.

The two men began the cadet training program Sept. 28, of this year. During their three months at the academy the cadets received over 700 hours of instructions and training in all phases of state police work.

Both men are graduates of Warren Area High School. Both are married. Hunter, following graduation from high school, served with the U.S. Air Force from 1960 to 1964, while Haskins, the father of two children, attended Edinboro State Teachers College.

Following graduation from the academy, the two men will receive two months of coach-pupil training at the troop level.

Wool Growers Issued Reminder

Warren County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office manager Gerald Bensink reminds all growers to remember the 1967 marketing year under the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture wool program ends December 31.

Payments for the current year will depend on completing all details of marketing either wool or lambs by that date.

Marketings completed after December 31 become marketings in the 1968 marketing year.

Applications for 1967 marketing year payments may be filed at the county ASCS office any time. This should be done as soon as possible. Growers have until January 31, 1968, to file for incentive payments.

Bensink says payments for 1967 will likely begin in April of next year.

Conversational Counselling And Compost

By Bernie Wingert, County Agent

Last week we discussed Christmas trees—how to tell one kind from another and such stuff as that. Better continue the discussion this week considering the arguing I've done since then. So may be it isn't important that you know whether you've purchased a pine, spruce or fir. But this is true for sure—some kinds of trees hold their needles better than others when placed in a warm room. Pines hold up best, followed by firs and then spruces.

A six foot tree will take in about a quart of water each day if it's in the house. If you really would like to keep your tree fresh and nice smelling throw out the Christmas tree stand that won't hold water. You needn't replace with a stand that's all legs, thumb screws, and pans. A wash bucket filled with sand is a dandy tree holder.

Another thing to remember is that a tree will really suck up water if you make a fresh cut at the butt, this you see removes the pitch and allows the water to move freely up the trunk and to the branches. Sometimes people like to buy a living Christmas tree and then set it out in the lawn after Christmas. Here are a few tips that may make this less of an exercise in futility.

The first and most important thing is to make certain that the soil in which the tree is growing or bagged is really wet. Ideally, the tree should not be brought into the house until the day before Christmas and moved back out again in a few days. This is because the warm room temperature and the lights cause the tree to begin growing after its late fall dormant period. When you set this growing tree back outside in our Warren County temperature it's like taking a sled ride in your BVD's. It's too much to bear for the tree. When I think about it, the example used is—too much, too bare period.

Another final thing regarding the living tree, if you set it in an unheated garage or building for several weeks before you replant in the lawn, the chances of surviving will increase considerably.

I've just been looking through the NASCO Farm and Ranch catalog and came across the perfect gift "for the man who has everything"—a 100-lb anvil with a 3/4" HARDBE hole and 1/2" PRITCHEL hole—costs only $57.50 plus postage. If you would like to order one for a friend, stop in our office in the Courthouse basement and I'll loan you the catalog.

Catholics In Moscow For Talks

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
ROME — A Catholic Church delegation is holding talks in Moscow with orthodox church leaders and university theologians, the Vatican confirmed Sunday.

In an official announcement, the Vatican said a five-man delegation headed by Msgr. Jan Willebrands, Dutch Secretary of the Secretariat for the Promotion of Christian Unity, "will exchange views with theologians, with the professors of the faculty of theology of the University of Leningrad on the social doctrine of the Catholic Church."

The announcement gave no indication when the delegation had left Rome, but it was believed to have been two days ago.

Some Vatican sources suggested that the delegation might also sound out the possibility of a papal visit to Russian Patriarch Alexei. However, the announcement said only that the present trip "was within the framework of regular contacts between the Roman Catholic church and each of the autocephalous orthodox churches."

Willebrands was accompanied by Msgrs. Pietro Pavan and George Higgins, a Dominican prelate, and by Jesuit fathers Jean Calvez and John Long.

Long, an American, is a member of the Unity Secretariat. Calvez is a consultant for the Vatican Secretariat for Non-believers.

Pavan, the only Italian member of the delegation, is a teacher at the Pontifical Lateran University of Rome and is considered one of the major experts on Christian social doctrine.

Much of the Church's social doctrine deals with labor and workers in the historical and contemporary periods. In this light Vatican attitudes are of particular importance in Communist countries, where the church is often under political attack.

Say Still Need For Income Tax Surcharge

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — The tax and benefit provisions of the Social Security bill as worked out by House and Senate conferees would exert a mildly restrictive effect on the economy next year, analysts have concluded.

In the view of the administration, there is still a need for an income tax surcharge because of the virtually neutral economic impact the Social Security legislation would have.

Under the provisions of the bill, which Congress is expected to pass, total Social Security tax collections in calendar year 1968 are estimated at $31 billion and benefits at $28.4 billion, for a net restrictive effect on purchasing power of $2.6 billion.

If there were no Social Security bill and present law prevailed, tax collections in 1968, would be $29.6 billion and benefits $25.5 billion, for a more substantial restrictive effect of $4.1 billion.

The original administration proposal, which had tax provisions similar to those in the conference bill but somewhat larger benefit increases, would have produced $30.8 billion in tax collections and $29.5 billion in benefits, leaving a small surplus of $1.3 billion.

Thus the final version of the bill, with a $2.6 billion surplus, is about $1.3 billion more restrictive than the administration measure would have been. However, observers do not view this as a major difference.

The higher benefits in the bill, including a 13 per cent increase for those now receiving Social Security checks, are not scheduled to flow into the economy until early March.

The only tax change for 1968 is an increase to $7,800 in the taxable wage base, from $6,600 this year.

The 1969 operations would be notably more restrictive than in 1968. Benefits in that year are estimated at $30.5 billion and tax collections at $35.2 billion, for a restrictive effect of $4.7 billion. The tax rate rises in 1969.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
(1967 BY THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE)

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—North-South vulnerable. As South you hold:
♠K87532 ♥63 ♣KJ974
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♦ Pass 1♠ Pass
2♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A—Four spades. Now that spades have been raised your hand has become worth 14 points (counting one for the fifth spade and two for the sixth). No further pressure should be placed on partner.

Q. 2—North-South vulnerable. As South you hold:
♠AK103 ♥5 ♦AJ1094 ♣A86
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♦ Pass 1NT Pass
2♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A—Two spades. This hand is technically a shade short of the requirements for a reverse which normally shows 19 points but all your points are of "top drawer" quality and you have very good intermediate cards. Furthermore, there is no satisfactory alternative rebid.

Q. 3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A32 ♥KQ2 ♦J107 ♣K1032
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1♦ Pass 1NT Pass
2♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A—Two no trump. Any stronger bid would be highly indiscreet. Partner has merely reopened the bidding and his action may have been dictated by a reluctance to permit the opposition to buy the contract at such a bargain price. If he does hold sound values your call will induce him to bid further.

Q. 4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J ♥AKQ109 ♦AJ87652
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♦ Pass 1NT Pass
3♥ Pass 3NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A—The normal procedure at this point would be to rebid the hearts, thus showing five hearts and at least six diamonds. However, we feel that a rebid of four diamonds may produce better results on this particular hand. If partner is able to raise to five, we can bid a slam with a reasonable assurance of making it. A rebid of four hearts may induce partner to pass with some mediocre hand containing four diamond support.

Q. 5—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K105 ♥63 ♦A5432 ♣J102
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♥ Dble. ?

What do you bid?
A—One no trump. On hands of this type, it is advisable to get into the bidding while it is convenient to show partner that you are in possession of moderate values. This may enable him to continue the fight if the opposition offers further competition.

Q. 6—Neither vulnerable. The opponents have a 40-part score, and as South you hold:
♠K2 ♥A102 ♦AQ432 ♣J1065
Your right hand opponent opens with one spade. What do you bid?

A—Double. This department does not normally endorse a take-out double of one spade on such meager values, since you are forcing partner to show his suit at the two level. However, considerations of score dictate a strategic bid at this point. While there is a definite risk in doubling, if you pass and West raises to two spades, you will then be faced with the dilemma of either permitting the opponents to get vulnerable very cheaply or of forcing partner to bid at the three level.

Q. 7—North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J10763 ♥Q10754 ♦6 ♣K8
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
3♦ 3NT Pass ?

What do you bid?
A—Pass. Don't be a nursemaid. Partner's overcall puts him strictly on his own. Had he been interested in hearing about the majors, he would have doubled.

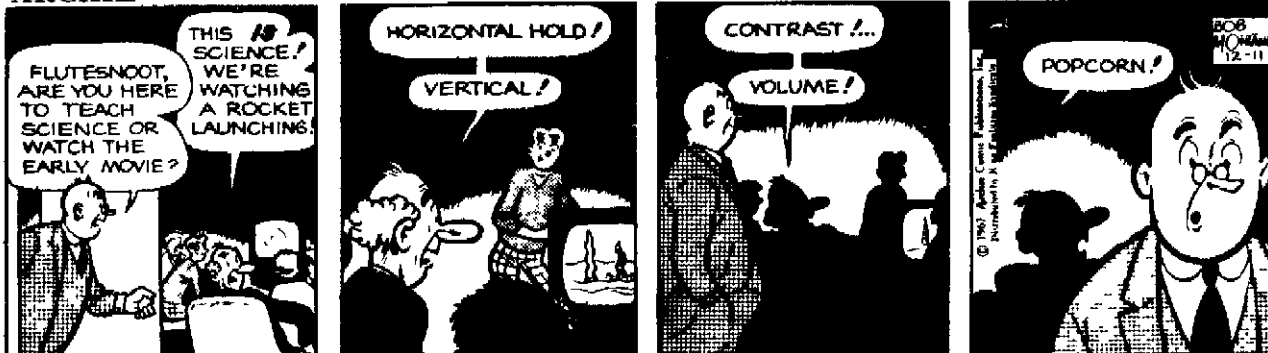

Q. 8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♥K73 ♦AJ1063 ♠A9865
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♦ Pass 1♠ Pass
2♠ Pass 3♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A—Three no trump. While this call is somewhat awkward with a void in partner's suit, no other bid will quite serve the purpose. An 11-trick contract should not be suggested with this minimum opening and a pass, of course, is out of the question since partner's bid is forcing.

STIFLED IN YOUR JOB?

Singer, Deane & Scribner is one of Pennsylvania's largest and most successful investment firms because we invest heavily in people. People are our most important asset. As we grow, we need more good people to grow with us; aggressive, ambitious men who honestly feel their potential is going untapped, their talent is going unrewarded, or their present position is unpromising.

Singer, Deane & Scribner is about to invest in careers for several new Registered Representatives to work in Pittsburgh or our branch office serving your town. College degree and selling experience are preferred but not required. Investment experience is not necessary. An intensive training program is followed by on-the-job guidance and advertising support. Future income and responsibilities are limited only by ability. If an opportunity like this appeals to you, invest a moment of your time to write us in confidence and tell us about yourself, your experience and your ambitions.

DOCTOR WRITES OWN STORY

Details Heart Transplant Method

By CHRISTIAN N. BARNARD
CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — At the beginning of November, 1967, following a successful kidney transplant operation some weeks earlier (at Groote Schuur Hospital) a decision was taken to attempt a human heart transplant operation.

Ten years of experience in open heart surgery and a four-year research program on organ transplantation had given us the background for confidence of a successful outcome to this undertaking.

It did not take long to find a patient suitable for cardiac transplant, and Mr. Louis Washkansky was considered to have heart disease incurable by any known treatment other than cardiac transplantation.

A suitable donor would be a young person with an inevitably fatal disease or injury but having an undamaged heart.

Suitable young people in this category are almost exclusively patients involved in severe accidents.

On Saturday, Dec. 2, a young lady, Miss Denise Ann Darvall, was admitted to Groote Schuur Hospital having suffered severe injuries in an (auto) accident shortly before.

Intensive resuscitation was commenced immediately she was admitted, but when seen shortly afterwards by a neurosurgeon she was declared to have inevitably fatal brain damage.

The team was alerted, and the injured girl and Mr. Washkansky were taken to adjoining operating theaters where preparations were continued for two simultaneous open-heart operations.

The operation commenced. Within half an hour of the commencement of the open-heart operation, when Mr. Washkansky's body had been cooled to protect his vital organs, the injured girl died, and the electrocardiograph showed complete paralysis of her heart.

The heart of the girl was exposed, connected to a heart-lung machine, and cardiopulmonary bypass was commenced with cooling of the blood in the bypass (heart-lung) machine.

When her heart was cooled sufficiently, it was removed by dividing the major veins and arteries and disconnected from the heart-lung machine in the first operating theater.

Her heart was transferred to the second operating theater, where it was reconnected within minutes to the second heart-lung machine and perfused (fed) with cold blood.

The perfusion continued during implantation of the heart.

Mr. Washkansky's aorta was clamped to isolate his heart from the blood circulating in the body and his severely damaged heart was excised (cut out), leaving portions of both atrial chambers to serve as the stem on to which the new heart would be grafted.

While the rest of Mr. Washkansky's body continued to be perfused from the heart-lung machine, the donor heart was sutured in position, using fine silk sutures to join the atria and main arteries of the new heart to those of Mr. Washkansky.

The clamp of Mr. Washkansky's aorta was released, and the new heart was perfused by blood pumped into the aorta from the heart-lung machine. Air was excluded from all chambers of the heart, and the rewarming of the blood in the heart-lung machine was commenced.

When the correct temperature had been reached, the new heart was given an electric shock through paddles placed on either side of the heart, and some 22 hours after it had stopped it started beating once more.

The rewarming of Mr. Washkansky's body continued, and some 20 minutes later the flow from the heart-lung machine was reduced, and little by little the heart took over the circulation.

Ten minutes later the heart.

lung machine was switched off finally, and the new heart was beating strongly and supporting abundant life in its new body. The tubes connecting the patient to the heart-lung machine were removed, and his chest was closed.

An X-ray picture of his chest showed all to be functioning well, and the electrocardiogram was satisfactory.

He was allowed to recover consciousness and then returned to the sterile postoperative intensive-care room some 6½ hours after the operation commenced.

The future of this operation appears most encouraging, and plans are under way for a second heart transplant operation at Groote Schuur Hospital within the next few weeks.

The practical application of this operative procedure in the field of heart disease is unlikely to be very wide for a number of years.

The difficulties are not only those associated with the organization of a large and highly skilled team but are most particularly concerned with the supply of suitable hearts for transplantation.

Research work in the field of organ preservation may advance sufficiently to allow the establishment of organ banks, but despite all these possible future expansions of the technique the demand for new hearts is very likely always to exceed the supply.

Landowners Get $81,725 From Highway Dept.

(TMO Harrisburg Bureau)
HARRISBURG—Warren County landowners during the past fiscal year received a total of $81,725 from the state in right-of-way payments to make way for highway improvements within the county.

A check with the State Highway Department shows that the property damage settlements during the year involved 47 claims within Warren County which were settled "amicably."

(As a point of comparison, claims processed within the county during the preceding fiscal year 1965-66 numbered 26 with total payments amounting to $43,648.)

In fiscal 1965-66, of the 26 claims processed, 24 were settled amicably, and two of viewers (or impartial appraisers), and one by action of a court jury.

Throughout the entire of Highway District 1, which embraces Crawford, Erie, Forest, Lawrence, Mercer, and Venango counties, in addition to Warren, right-of-way payments for the fiscal year 1966-67 totaled $866,146.14, involving 503 property damage claims in the seven-county district.
